76 Miners Die In Explosion of Ohio Coal Mine

Number Rescued in Critical Condition Officials Declare

Relatives Identify Their Dead In Improvised Morgue

CAUSE IS UNKNOWN

Mine Thought By Company Officials to Be Free From Gas

MILLFIELD, Ohio, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Number six mine of the Sunday Creek Company Coal mine gave the last of her dead today, when at 7:30 a. m. the seventy-sixth victim was brought to the surface.

Fear that this total might be increased was expressed by rescue workers, officials and physicians of the Sunday Creek Company, as eighteen of those alive and brought to the surface are in a critical condition. These men were brought out of the shaft late last night and early today.

An improvised morgue has been established in a store building near the shaft. The bodies of the victims were taken down into the workings to haul bodies out as the explosion had wrecked the rails upon which the mine cars traversed the tunnels. Most of the bodies were about 1 1/2 miles from the elevator in the main shaft.

The mine is a shaft operation, with one level about 200 feet below the surface. Normally, it employs 325 men. The mine was not known as a gaseous operation, and to both miners and officials was considered perfectly safe.

The shaft is located near here, and about nine miles northeast of Athens. The region has been hard hit by unemployment and poor business conditions. Col. Wade Christy, assistant adjutant general of Ohio, visited the region only last week on an inspection tour, and he reported to Governor Cooper that much poverty existed in the region.

Positions of some of the bodies seen by Maurer showed that the victims had made desperate attempts to flee the terrible gasses. Ten men succumbed in the entrance of a ventilating shaft not far from the apparent center of the explosion, while six others had fallen just outside the air shaft.

Life Sentence For Confessed Slayer

Hayes Brown Pleads Guilty to Murder in Court at Camden

CAMDEN, Nov. 6.—Hayes Brown, Snow Hill farmer, pleaded guilty to a first degree murder charge Wednesday noon and was sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge L. S. Britt. He was charged with murder of Cecil Dade, a neighbor, last May 29. Selection of a jury occupied the entire morning.

In the afternoon when court reconvened defense lawyers decided on a plea of guilty.

Tuesday a board of local physicians adjudged Brown sane.

C. S. Gordon, local confectioneer, charged with arson, was acquitted. The case was charged with setting fire to his unoccupied house on South Main street.

Heflin Finally to Go Out of Office

Alabama Senator Beaten After 34 Continuous Years on Job

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Senator J. Thomas Heflin was rebuffed in Tuesday's general election by the Democratic party of Alabama that for 34 years had honored him continuously with elective office and John H. Bankhead of Jasper was named to succeed him next March. It was Senator Heflin's first defeat for elective office.

In rebuking Alabama's senior senator, the Democrats decisively defeated an insurgent "Jeffersonian" movement he led with the avowed purpose of "reorganizing the Democratic party in Alabama," after the state Executive Committee had barred him and his running mates from participating in the primary.

Senator Heflin, Hugh A. Locke of Birmingham, Jeffersonian candidate for governor, and Dempsey M. Powell of Greenville, candidate for lieutenant governor, were active in behalf of the Republican presidential ticket in 1928 and under a resolution adopted by the Executive Committee any person who "voiced for or openly espoused" the Republican presidential ticket two years ago was excluded from becoming a candidate in the primary last August.

Defeat of the Jeffersonian ticket climaxed one of the most vigorous and extensive campaigns in recent years. The vote yesterday was estimated to approximate that of two years ago when 247,000 ballots were cast.

The Jeffersonians not only lost in the state-wide races, but in Congressional districts and in most of the counties where they had candidates they were defeated.

Practically complete unofficial tabulations gave each of the three Democratic candidates in the state-wide races a majority of approximately 50,000 votes.

The vote in 2,099 of the state's 2,115 ballot boxes gave Bankhead 149,112; Heflin 97,087. For governor, 2,080 boxes gave B. M. Miller of Camden, Democrat, 149,534; Locke 90,908. For lieutenant governor, Hugh D. Merrill of Anniston, Democrat, in 2,034 boxes received 144,865; to Powell's 84,792.

Alabama's 10 Democratic congressmen were re-elected, the four having opposition, two from Republicans, one from a Jeffersonian and one from an independent, winning by substantial majorities.

Throughout the state, the Jeffersonians failed to hold close to the Republican majorities of two years ago, when President Hoover came within approximately 7,000 of carrying the state. Senator Heflin carried only 10 of the 67 counties with a possibility of adding the 11th on completed returns where he trailed by six votes.

Aside from the "reorganization" issue, Senator Heflin charged that the state Democratic Executive Committee was dominated by "wet Tammany" interests and attacked John J. Raskob, chairman of the National Democratic Executive Committee for his stand on prohibition.

Jonesboro Scene of $150,000 Roller Mill Blaze Today

Most Disastrous Blaze For Several Months; Cause Undetermined

THE LOSS IS INSURED

Three Large Grain Elevators Are Only Slightly Damaged

JONESBORO, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The most disastrous fire here in several months occurred early today when the main building of the Jonesboro Roller Mill company was destroyed.

The loss is estimated by officials of the company at $150,000, which is fully covered by insurance.

Origin of the blaze is not known. The fire was discovered by a night watchman about 3 a. m. and could have been the result of several causes.

Old Lagore, nightwatchman in the building said he had been by what apparently was the starting place of the fire a short time before the blaze was discovered.

A grocery company building caught on fire from flying bits of burning roofing but was soon extinguished.

The building of the Roller Mill company was a three story frame structure and burned rapidly.

Three large grain elevators of fire proof construction were only slightly damaged.

Juror Faints at Batesville Trial

Swons As He Leaves the Courtroom in Torture Robbery Case

BATESVILLE, Nov. 6.—Trial of one of three men accused of torturing Jim Swain, 69-year-old recluse, in an attempt to learn the whereabouts of a supposed hoard of money, was concluded and the case went to the jury Wednesday night.

Just as the jurors left the courtroom to deliberate on the fate of the defendant, L. F. Sturch, one of them, J. E. Creech, fainted. A physician was called but Creech had not recovered consciousness for some time afterward.

Sturch's only defense was an alibi that he was in Oklahoma on the day this torture was supposed to have been perpetrated. This was substantiated by two alleged confederates, L. M. Carter and W. F. Lloyd, Carter and Lloyd have been indicted, but have not yet come to trial.

Swain identified the trio as three men who came to his lonely farmhouse about 20 miles from here last September 19 and stuck pins into his flesh for several hours in an effort to learn where he was supposed to have a sum of money hidden. He also was whipped, he said. The trio left after he convinced them he had no hidden hoard.

Erupting Pacific Volcano Drives Hunters Off Island

UNALASKA, Alaska, Nov. 5.—(UP)—Resembling a boiling pot, with a cone rising in the center, Gareloi Island, far west in the Aleutian chain, presents a weird sight to sailors passing the Andean Islands.

Gareloi has been in more or less of a turbulent stage as long as old timers can remember, but its present state of activity is greater than it has ever been.

Its walls as a trapping ground has steadily decreased. Eruptions have driven hunters and trappers off the island.

The island appears to be the top of a huge mountain extending upward from the ocean floor. Although increased activity has been noted on all volcanic islands in the vicinity, and several earthquake shocks have been felt, disturbances have apparently been centered on Gareloi.

Theft of Envelopes Fails to Get Him Back in Pen

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 5.—(UP)—J. R. Allen stole 50 two-cent envelopes, took them to M. R. Morgan, postal inspector and demanded he be sent to Atlanta penitentiary.

"I served one term in Atlanta penitentiary and I liked it there. I stole the envelopes in order to get my old job back. When do I start," he demanded.

But U. S. Commissioner Carl Noble said the offense wasn't serious enough. Allen was acquitted.

L. Claire Cargile To Speak at C. C. Banquet Thursday

Texarkanian Who Addressed Merchants Will Return Next Week

IS ANNUAL MEETING

Officers For 1931 to Be Announced Next Thursday

L. Claire Cargile, president of the Texarkana Chamber of Commerce and a leader in various other community activities in that city, has accepted an invitation to deliver the principal address on the occasion of the annual banquet and membership meeting of the Hope Chamber of Commerce, to be held at Hotel Barlow, Thursday, November 13, at 7:30 p. m.

Mr. Cargile is a speaker of ability, is well versed in various phases of community development and the Hope Chamber of Commerce is fortunate in securing him as speaker for this occasion. He is remembered here as the principal speaker at the organization meeting of the Hope Retail Merchants association last January.

Plans are under way for the annual membership meeting and officials expect that the best program in the history of the organization is being arranged.

The annual campaign for the renewal of memberships will begin on Monday following the annual meeting. The distinction of being the first to enroll for 1931 goes to Shiver Brothers. "The Hope Chamber of Commerce has had one of the most successful years in its history," said this firm in sending in its renewal. The demands for a commercial organization will be greater during 1931 and every business and professional man in the city should give the Hope Chamber of Commerce his most loyal support.

The executive committee has announced that plans have been completed for holding the annual election. Ballots containing the names of 34 of the leading business men of the city will be mailed to the membership this week. Seventeen directors will be chosen from this list to serve during the next fiscal year.

His Family Hungry Is Plea of Burglar

Prisoner Says He Sought Food For His Wife and Child

LITTLE ROCK, Nov. 6.—An effort to obtain food for his wife and child who he said were on the verge of starvation landed Elden Manning, aged about 20, 400 Wolfe street, in jail. He faces prospect of a prison sentence.

Patrolmen Long and L. W. Biggs said they surprised Manning at a rear door of the store of Sol Alley, 1701 West Tenth shortly before 2 a. m. yesterday. At the sight of the officers Manning ran. Biggs left the police car and gave chase, catching Manning after a race of several blocks.

Several shots fired by the officers missed. Examination of the door, officers said, revealed a hole drilled through and another hole started. On the ground at the door, officers found a brace and bit.

Arraigned before Acting Municipal Judge Phil McNeer Manning pleaded guilty. He said he was unable to find employment and that the Social Welfare Bureau had contributed food for his family. The supply was inadequate, Manning told Judge McNeer and as the result his wife and baby were hungry. It was this that caused him to turn burglar. Officers also found a feed sack which Manning had carried to the store.

Hawks Attempts Long Distance Hop

Contemplates Two Stops on 1600 Mile Journey to Havana, Cuba

VALLEY STREAM, N. Y., Nov. 6.—(AP)—An hour after he had started on a flight to Cuba, Captain Frank M. Hawks returned to the airport here to have some adjustments made on his motor.

He remained on the field only a few minutes and took off again on the 1600-mile journey. Hawks expects to make the trip in about seven hours, with two stops, one at Columbia, S. C., and the other at Miami, Florida, for fuel.

The present record is 14 hours, made by the late Wilmer Stultz, in the monoplane Columbia. This flight was made in March 1928, and was a non-stop flight.

Confessions Clear Los Angeles Crime

Slayer of Woman Says Her Ex-Husband Hired Him as Slayer

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Two confessions to the shotgun murder of Mrs. Merle Ellis, 22, a mother, were claimed by police today, one allegedly by the hired killer and the other by the woman's divorced husband.

The verdict of a coroner's jury also directly accused Emory Ellis of hiring Benjamin Franklin Brown, itinerant glass moulder, to kill the mother of his own son.

"Mrs. Ellis died of gunshot wounds inflicted by Benjamin Franklin Brown, employed to do the killing by Emory Ellis, with homicidal intent," the jury verdict read.

Immediately after the verdict was returned both men were remanded to jail without bail.

The confession of Brown amazed police detectives by its unexpected solution of a murder which had puzzled them since Sunday. They quoted him as confessing that Ellis offered him $2,000 but he had received only $250 in times.

Shown Brown's confession, Ellis, detectives said, corroborated Brown's story. For three days Ellis had stuck to an alibi that he had worked throughout Saturday night, when his divorced wife was killed as she slept.

Joe Brown is survived by his step-father, a brother and a sister.

Arkansan Is Shot in Election Fight

Man of Near Paragould Wounded By Missouri Deputies

POPULAR BLUFF, Mo., Nov. 6.—Will Smith of near Paragould, Ark., was shot and wounded seriously Tuesday when he resisted arrest and exchanged pistol shots with deputy sheriffs at Neelyville, in the only outbreak of an otherwise quiet election day.

Smith with two other men visited Neelyville and tried to vote. He was denied the privilege because he was a resident of Arkansas. Threats were made to officers and when Smith started to leave town in a truck it is alleged that he fired at deputies, who pursued him. The race led for about a mile before two deputies jumped from an automobile onto Smith's truck.

About 20 shots were fired, only one bullet taking effect. It lodged in Smith's back. Smith was brought to a popular bluff hospital, where he underwent an operation. One of his companions was jailed. Logan Murray and Dallas Henderson, deputy sheriffs, suffered injuries when they were caught between the officers' car and the truck.

Executive Seized In $200,000 Theft

Treasurer of L. C. Smith Typewriter Co. Accused of Fraud

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP)—George W. Griffin, 49, said to be treasurer of L. C. Smith and Corona Typewriters, Inc., was under arrest last night on a charge of "mail fraud." Authorities charged that the firm's books had been falsified to cover the theft of between $200,000 and $250,000 in two years.

In another cell in the West 30th street police station was Griffin's wife, Mrs. Bessie Griffin, 43, Syracuse, N. Y. She was charged with felonious assault and violation of the Sullivan anti-firearms law. The charge grew out of her alleged attempt to shoot three detectives.

While eating breakfast in her hotel room, detectives said, Mrs. Griffin quarreled with the waiter about the food, finally drawing a revolver from beneath her pillow and ordering the man out of the room.

Summoned by the hotel management, three detectives saw they entered the room and announced their identity to Mrs. Griffin, who pointed the revolver and exclaimed: "Get right out of here."

One of the detectives snatched the weapon and Mrs. Griffin was arrested. Her husband was taken in custody by detectives of a private agency and postal inspectors. The government men asked that Griffin be held when he will be questioned by representatives of the federal prosecutor about alleged falsified statements and checks said to have been sent through the mails.

Gov. W. J. Holloway of Oklahoma, whose term expires in January, will resume the practice of law for at least two years, he has announced.

Complete Count in State Slightly More Than Half Finished

Parnell and Wilson Lead Opponents By Vote of 6 to 1 in Count

OTHER STATES SLOW

Reports From Other States Show That Count of Votes Is Slow

LITTLE ROCK, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The seven amendments, sponsored by the Arkansas Taxpayers' Association, seemed today to be trailing behind three others and the one sponsored by the Arkansas legislature, which slight leads in returns today.

Returns were complete today on 100 precincts out of 207. At noon today the following tabulation, with little more than half the vote in, is as follows:

|             | For    | Against |
|-------------|--------|---------|
| Amd. No. 19 | 35,101 | 24,741  |
| No. 21      | 36,602 | 24,770  |
| No. 22      | 37,188 | 25,079  |
| No. 23      | 37,668 | 25,371  |
| No. 24      | 34,177 | 25,277  |
| No. 25      | 31,808 | 25,277  |
| No. 26      | 36,004 | 25,307  |
| No. 27      | 24,733 | 25,171  |

Amendment No. 20, sponsored by Lieutenant Governor Lee Cazor, on the basis of the present returns seems to be defeated by a vote of about 10 to one. This bill would provide for an elective highway body of seven members, instead of the five that is now appointed.

Retention of the Hall Income Tax act has carried by a three to one vote this leading seeming general over the state.

For governor, Harvey Parnell and Lieutenant Governor L. E. Swain were leading their Republican opponents by a six to one vote.

Democrats were today leading in the undecided districts of Kentucky at noon an Associated Press report showed that the Democrats had carried six of the precincts in a supposedly Republican stronghold.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Revised but unofficial returns of all but one Kansas county showed that Frank Houke, Republican leading by 744 votes, Harry H. Wooding, Democrat.

MUNCIE, Ind., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Discovery of an error in one of the precincts of the 8th District in Congress gave Claude C. Ball a Democrat 29 votes lead over Albert H. Vestal. The 8th district is in one of the states doubtful columns. Fourteen of the 42 precincts in the district have not yet been heard from.

Herndon in Speech to Kiwanis Club

Discovers Two Former Local Men in Visit to Atlanta

Two members of the Kiwanis club made up the program at Thursday noon's regular meeting of this civic club organization, at Hotel Barlow. Rufus Herndon told of his recent trip to the annual convention of the National Association of Undertakers, at Atlanta, Ga. He made up his Kiwanis attendance that week by attending the club meeting at Atlanta, where he was surprised to find two former Hope citizens among the membership.

Will J. Hammond, one time superintendent of public schools of Hope, and Rev. Stuart Olesby, are members of the Atlanta club. The Rev. Mr. Olesby, formerly minister of the local Presbyterian church, is now pastor of the leading Presbyterian church in Atlanta. W. J. Hammond is a co-partner in a school book publishing firm of that city.

The Rev. George F. X. Strassner, gave an inspiring talk on the value and need of civic club membership to the individual Kiwanian.

The board of directors meeting was postponed until next Thursday night. Mrs. Katie Scott Holland furnished the music for today's meeting.

This Also Is Progress!

BY THE time the congress which was elected last Tuesday takes office at Washington in December, 1931, it will have been eleven years since the Democratic party has had more than a nominal voice in the control of the nation.

We are assured that the new congress, if not actually controlled by the Democrats, will at least be ruled by compromise—so close is the strength of the two parties measured. It has been eleven years. We heard staunch Democrats say in 1924 the party was "dead." We heard them say in 1928 it was "dead and buried." They said "the country" is permanently Republican.

Yet in 1930 that which was dead is risen; and that which was permanent is washed away.

This also is progress.

We seldom think of politics as being concerned with progress.
That is because we have little minds. We bow down too easily to shallow truths and temporary mansions. We are too prone to worship the thing which we ourselves builded. When the Republican, with his stiff shirt and his frock coat, walked into the "front office" of the nation's workshop in 1920 and said, "Now we shall have normalcy," we believed —whether we were Republicans or Democrats.

We believed it for ten long years. And during that time we worshipped "normalcy" in a thousand ways. All things were good that followed 1920. If they weren't good we made them so by putting up a good "front." We worshipped prosperity. We distorted the value of money. We warped our every judgment by the false notion that here at last was "normalcy"—and it would not pass away.

The Republican, with his stiff shirt and his frock coat, walked into the "front office" in 1920 and took charge. Today the shirt-sleeved workers in the shop have run him out.
The old gentleman who had so much to say in 1920 leaves the scene rather hurriedly in 1930—he is discreetly silent, a mute witness to the fact that it is perfectly possible for a man to build a machine that will run away with him.

Fortunately, this is one Democratic triumph that will not die with the croak of forlorn prophecies in the North and East. The sky has been so dark over yonder this last year than any Democratic raven of past elections would look like a golden eagle today. Here is an auspicious time for any good work to begin. It can't get worse. It must get better.

Furthermore, we are enjoying an experience in common with the peoples of other lands. In Argentina, a Liberal government was turned out of power. In Brazil, the Conservative machine was destroyed. In the United States, the Republicans fell with a mighty crash—and all three, for the same causes: Deflated business, slackened industry, unemployment, distress in the agricultural sections over a long period.

It is no point to ask what the Democrats expect to do about it. Half the problem is solved by the mere psychology of knowing that whatever we attempt, it will be different.

Every once in a while we get bedded down so deeply in the established order of things that our brains and energy are laid away.

Perhaps now we shall have to use our imagination again.
Or experiment a little.

And this also is progress.

Paying Doctors' Bills

THERE is no particular news in the fact that a sick man often postpones calling the doctor because he feels that it will be hard to pay the fee. Consequently, it is not surprising to learn that wage-earners and their dependents summon medical attention more often when no bill is to follow than they do when they have to pay for it. Nevertheless, a study recently made of such a situation by the committee on the Costs of Medical Care is well worth reading for the implications it contains.

The committee studied the Workers' Medical Service set up by the Endicott-Johnson Corporation for its employees, maintained by company and workers at a cost of approximately $800,000 a year. Under this plan, any worker can get medical attention whenever he needs it free. Not only the doctors' fees but hospitalization and nursing costs as well, for the worker and for members of his family, are paid out of this general company fund.

Naturally enough, comparing the results obtained under this system with those to be found in a similar group of outside workers, the committee found that all but 19 per cent of the cases of illness among the Endicott-Johnson workers received medical care, as compared with 37 per cent on the outside. Furthermore, in 76 per cent of these cases the doctor was called within three days; on the outside, this average was only 68 per cent. The protected workers were hospitalized more often, consulted specialists more often and had the services of a dentist more often than the other workers.

Now this, to repeat, is not at all surprising; but it testifies rather strongly about the part which financial resources, or the lack of them, can play in any general health program. All too often the wage earner will try to ignore the onset of an illness rather than pay out doctors' fees. Where some means are provided by which this service comes to him without a fee, he acts much more promptly to save his health —and, as an inevitable result, thereby has better health than he would otherwise.

WASHINGTON—The impression grows that the Wickersham Commission, otherwise known as the President's National Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement, will come along one of these days with a report which will recommend, in effect, light wines and beer.

Your correspondent puts that forth as a matter of common report rather than as a prediction.
The commission has said and done
so many funny things, both collectively and individually—not forgetting that individual, Chairman George W. Wickersham—that your correspondent is little short of delighted to leave predictions about the commission to them as eager to make 'em.

In specializing about this commission one doesn't feel just like depending on the premise that all known facts point to the theory that the commission will suggest modification of the Volstead act.
Of course, all the known facts do.

But, in all seriousness, there are several splendid minds among the membership and when you get such a group of acknowledged intellects accompanied by strong prejudices you are likely to get almost anything when everybody gets together and tries to make a report with recommendations.

Can't Ignore Report

Assuming that the reader is impartial on the subject of prohibition—which certainly establishes a new record for optimism in assumptions—one makes bold to suggest that a definitely moist recommendation from the commission would cause a great deal of commotion. It simply can't be ignored. Even President Hoover couldn't ignore it. It's his commission, it includes several so-called "best minds" and it is dealing with a great national problem.

Everybody knows that Hoover isn't either a fanatical wet or a fanatical dry. It can be stated with confidence that the president is for whatever he thinks is best for the country and for the Republican party and for the success of the party ticket in 1932.

In passing the commission's report along to Congress, Mr. Hoover can endorse it, remain non-committal or make adverse comment. Assuming that the commission is somewhat less than completely dry in its suggestions, the subsequent attitude of the president becomes a lively subject of speculation. Nobody knows, apparently, just what he would do.

A great many persons are convinced that there are enough
"Hoover men" on the commission
—such as Wickersham and Judge Kenneth Mackintosh of Washington—to make sure that the majority attitude is not unsatisfactory to the president.

Even so, Mr. Hoover might pass the anticipated report along to Congress without comment, as the deliberate and carefully considered opinion of a distinguished and studious group of public servants.

Many Problems Involved

Those who have watched the commission most closely—whenever they have taken it seriously or otherwise—think that it will suggest that the Volstead act be amended to allow the various states to define the term "intoxicating beverage."

According to this belief, the commission is unlikely to suggest any tinkering with the eighteenth amendment. But, if the recommendation were carried out in legislation, those states where Volstead act enforcement is difficult—or impossible—would be allowing themselves light wines and real beer and those states which are really dry would continue to go along on near-beer and illicit products.

That proposition wouldn't flatter the organized dries or to the organized wets—who are now all yelling for repeal of the eighteenth amendment. But it might look attractive to Mr. Hoover as he thinks of 1932. If he were publicly to throw the whole thing into the lap of Congress, announcing that decision on the commission's recommendations was entirely up to the people as their will might be expressed through their chosen representatives, he might be able to avoid making any such strong personal stand on the prohibition issue as is likely to be demanded of both presidential candidates in 1932. Of course, it is quite likely that the president isn't sure just what he will do in 1932, but it is dead certain that he is living the matter plenty of thought.

"I'm marrying for

—but on her wedding day...

FROM childhood she had been brought up for the marriage market.
All her actions had been planned—to please men. Love had been forced out of her life.

And now it was her wedding day.
She thought of Bob, so soon to be her husband. "I have managed well," she mused. She had loved Allan, of course.
But Allan was poor...while Bob could give her everything...

The door opened suddenly and her father stood before her. She saw at once that something had happened.
"What is wrong?" she cried.

Without a word he handed her a letter, and as she read it her cheeks paled. For a thing like this to happen —at the very hour of her wedding.

25 YEARS AGO

Davis and the Governor—The gov-ernatorial field is pretty well closed for the race to be finished with the primaries next March, says the Democrat. The next governor will either be Congressman J. S. Little, of Sebastian, Attorney General Robert L.
Rogers, or Sheriff S. Q. Severe of Camden. The indications are that these three candidates will run the race through, and that there will be no more entries. Last summer there were at least a dozen names mentioned as possibilities, but the list dwindle-ed down to five, and that has been pruned to the three named. The contest is one of unusual interest on account of the manner in which it has been dove-tailed into the campaign for the United States senate, and the manner in which Gov. Davis has injected himself into it.

At this time, in view of the recent developments, it is very evident that Gov. Davis was instrumental in inducing two of the candidates to enter the race. Senator John P. Logan of Siloam Springs, known as the stepfather of the anti-trust act, and ex-Senator David L. King of Sharp county, father of the act. Early in the campaign they traveled with him, sat upon the platform with him, and announced their candidacy at the same time. Governor Davis referred to both of them as his friends, and told of their relations toward the antitrust act. Each of them seemed to be trying to ride into office on the Davis band wagon.

10 YEARS AGO

The oil outlook at Blevins—Well known geologists have endorsed the Blevins field and have stated that they have an excellent chance in that vicinity for uncovering a large pool of oil. The surface formation is very similar to the Louisiana fields and oil operators from other states who have gone over these leases are very optimistic of oil being found here in large quantities. An English corporation with unlimited capital is very much interested in the locality and their geologists have been working near Blevins for some time.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified crescote that is pleasant to take.
Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs crescote is recognized by high medical authorities
as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to crescote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the crescote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

How to play Bridge AUCTION or CONTRACT

by Wynne Ferguson Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

Copyright, 1930, by Hoyle, Jr.

ARTICLE No. 8

An indication of the great popularity of auction and the hold it has on the public fancy, is the fact that the merchants of the country are now making use of interesting hands to advertise their products. The following hands are recommended as examples. They were given as problems in the preceding article:

Solution to Problem No. 3

Hearts — A, 9, 7, 5
Clubs — Q, 7, 6
Diamonds — Q, 3
Spades — A, K, Q, 3
Hearts — 8, 4, 2
Clubs — 4
Diamonds — K, J, 8, 6
Spades — J, 8, 7, 4, 2

Hearts — K, 3
Clubs — K, 10, 8, 5, 3, 2
Diamonds — 9, 5, 4
Spades — 10, 6
Hearts — Q, J, 10, 6
Clubs — A, J, 9
Diamonds — A, 10, 7, 2
Spades — 9, 5

AUCTION BIDDING:

No score, rubber game. Z dealt, bid one trump and all passed. If A opened the five of clubs, how can Z score a small slam against any defense?

CONTRACT BIDDING:

Z one no trump, A pass. Y three spades, B pass. Z should now bid three no trumps. A should pass and Y, with a very strong hand, should bid six no trumps. How can it be made?

Solution: Z should win the first trick in his own hand and lead the queen of hearts. A should cover and Y should win the trick with the ace. Z should now lead three rounds of hearts, winning the fifth trick in his own hand. B should discard a low spade. At the sixth trick Z should lead the deuce of diamonds and play the queen from Y's hand. B should win this trick and his best play is a spade. Y should win this trick and lead the three of diamonds. B should play low, Z the ten and A low. Z should now play the ace of clubs and B is forced to discard. He cannot discard a diamond or Z's diamonds are good. He cannot discard another spade or Y's spades are good, so that either way Y Z must win the balance of the tricks. It is a very pretty little problem, so work it out for the experience.

Solution to Problem No. 4

Hearts — 7, 6
Clubs — A, 1, 6, 4
Diamonds — A, 10, 7, 4, 2
Spades — 10, 6
Hearts — 4
Clubs — 10, 9, 5, 3, 2
Diamonds — J, 9, 8, 5, 3
Spades — K, 7
Hearts — A, 10, 3, 2
Clubs — 8
Diamonds — Q, 6
Spades — A, 9, 8, 4, 3, 2

AUCTION BIDDING:

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one heart. A passed, Y bid two diamonds and B bid two spades. Z bid three hearts and all passed. A opened the king of spades, which held the trick. He continued with the seven of spades. B won this trick with the ace and the problem is to pick out B's correct lead at the third trick and the reasons for it.

CONTRACT BIDDING:

Z, as dealer, should bid one heart. A should pass. Y should bid two diamonds and B should bid two spades. Z should bid three hearts. A should pass and Y should bid four hearts. B should pass, for a double would locate the heart strength. The play is the same as at Auction.

Solution: B's best play is a low trump. If he leads a spade and A is unable to overtake the dummy, the location of the ten of hearts, the only missing card, will be known to be in B's hand and when Y obtains the lead, Y Z can score game by finessing against B. On the other hand, the trump lead does not give any information and the location of the ten of hearts is still unknown. This problem, of course, is based on the fact that Z has not seen the hands of A and B.

Solution to Problem No. 5

Hearts — J, 10, 4, 3
Clubs — Q, J
Diamonds — 10, 9, 7, 2
Spades — A, 10, 9
Hearts — 10, 9, 7, 2
Clubs — A, 10, 9
Diamonds — 10, 9, 7, 2
Spades — A, 10, 9

AUCTION BIDDING:

No score, first game. Z dealt, bid one no trump and all passed. What is A's proper opening lead?

CONTRACT BIDDING is the same. Solution: A's proper lead is the trey of hearts. The long suit opening is the logical one and one that cannot hurt A's hand. The player who held this hand in actual play led the queen of clubs and defended the play on the ground that the lead of the heart would probably lose a trick. Don't ever make short openings against a no trump bid, unless your partner has bid the short suit you decide to open. Your long suit always is the proper opening when your partner hasn't bid.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this method of expressing our sincere thanks to our many friends and neighbors who were so kind to us during the illness and death of our little son, Billy. Especially do we wish to thank the doctors, Dr. Budin, and the American Legion. Also for the many beautiful floral offerings.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thornburg, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Mitchell, J. L. Mitchell.

yesterday morning to the members of the Wednesday Contract Bridge club. The rooms were bright with autumn flowers and bridge was played from two tables with Mrs. Finley Ward scoring high. At the close of the game the hostess served a most delicious dessert with tea.

The parents and pupils of senior high school, are cordially invited by the Senior High P. T. A. to a get-together party tomorrow evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey McRae on East Third street. To meet the teachers of the senior high school.

Baseball Chatters.
 Noticing the other day that the Giants went to bat with a season decision on farm-hand players and it looked like a new man to me. It happened like this:
 In the eve of the world series the Brooklyn ball club drafted Jimmy Pattison, former Brooklyn high school pitcher, from the Macon, Ga. club. Brooklyn owns the Macon club, and seemed to have a perfect right to draft the young southpaw if it pleased.
 Here's the point: several other big league teams, among them the Giants, were after Pattison, who was subject to draft. The Giants did not need Pattison for next year but did want to see an arm grab him. He might be a star, you know, but that wouldn't be so good.

Just a Gesture.
 Shortly after the draft meeting, the Robins announced that they had withdrawn their claim on Pattison and returned him to Macon. With the chance to draft the young man passed, the other big league clubs who would have liked to draft Pattison had to see him go back to the Brooklyn farm.
 The judge, however, came to the club as soon as he heard of Brooklyn's action and ruled that no major league club may draft a player from its own farm.

Where the Rub Comes.
 Suppose the Giants, or the Pirates, who also were after Pattison, had drafted him and he turned out to be a sensation in 1931. The young man's fame and fortune would be made. As it is, he has been robbed of a chance to show the big leagues what he has, at least his chance has been deferred another year. This has happened to promising players time and again.
 The judge is to be congratulated on the position he took.

Yankee Property.
 Detroit decided it would need pitcher Sam Gibson, so it

DID YOU KNOW THAT—
 ONE of Knute Rockne's choice bits of advice to quarterbacks is: "When in doubt, punt." . . . another is, "Know when not to forward pass." . . . besides teaching football, Knute teaches the players how to take care of themselves physically. . . . his advice to fullbacks is, "Relax while signals are being called and keep on balls of feet." . . . another hunch to aspiring fullbacks is, "Look for a hole, and it need not be large, as you can make it large by plunging through with leg drive." . . . Rockne teaches hard football, but believes in saving his men as much as possible. . . . he tells halfbacks to go out of bounds when they are about to be tackled near the sidelines. . . . he is continually telling his backs to relax, but one of the points he emphasizes in instructing his men is, "Never relax mentally."

into in 1931. The Yankees stepped in and purchased the young man in September. The boys were puzzled for a while that the Yanks should take on a pitcher that the Tigers had turned down.

The other day it was cleared up. The Yanks sent Sam Gibson and Bill Henderson to San Francisco as part payment for Frankie Crosetti, who is to join the Yankees in 1932. Henderson was the player sent to Jersey City by the Yankees last spring, and then brought back so that Lou McEvoy could be sent to California in July. About the time McEvoy arrived on the coast, he was recalled and Henderson sent instead. You may get from this what chattels minor league ball players are. And how their chances to show their ability in the big leagues often are curtailed for the sake of a trade.

Is it any wonder that after ball players establish their rights to stay in big league company that they look out for more money? And can you blame them?

Absent-minded Professor Lectures in Wrong Room

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 5.—(UP)—There's something in the old gags after all.

Many a time, Professor Stuart Daggett had laughed indulgently at that old one about the absent-minded professor. The other day, he walked into the class room and began a rapid-fire lecture on some engineering problem.

Prompted by a student, he blushed, said: "I must be in the wrong room," and left. The students then settled down to a lecture on the commission form of government by another professor, which was what they had come for.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ill., Nov. 6.—(UP)—Jersey, an eight-year-old cow of the same breed as its name, is finally pasturing on the farm of Tan Barker, near here, after months of litigation over whom she belonged to.

Jersey originally was the property of John Eyepock, but when John went to jail for liquor law violation, Mrs. Eyepock sold the cow to Barker.

No sooner was Eyepock freed than he sought by replevin action to bring Jersey home. He went to court about it, while all the time Jersey was giving three gallons of milk a day over on the Barker farm. Eyepock wanted a return on the milk, as well as his cow back.

But now Judge R. C. Tracy has ruled sale of the cow was legal and Jersey belongs to Barker.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CELIA MITCHELL, 17, leaves Baltimore where she has lived with her mother, Mrs. Margaret Rogers, to join her wealthy father, JOHN MITCHELL, in New York. The parents are divorced and Mrs. Rogers is a widow following a second marriage.

MARGARET ROGERS, young woman, photographer, is in love with the girl, Mitchell, and is determined to introduce her daughter to the young man. Mrs. Rogers, however, is a miser and means to win Mitchell's affections, she soon becomes jealous of the girl and schemes to get rid of her by encouraging a romance between Celia and TOM JORDAN, a fascinating but of dubious character.

Although Mitchell forbids Celia to see Jordan she goes about with the young man frequently. LIZ BUNCAN, a girl of Celia's age, becomes her loyal friend. Sheila comes to New York to work for a photographic service and meets Celia. She tells him she has lost her heart to Jordan.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CELIA rattled the door knob. No one answered and she knocked again, louder. "Mother!" she cried. "Mother—let me in!"

There was no response from within the flat, but a door across the hall opened a few inches and a woman's head, grotesque with curl papers, appeared.

"What you want?" she asked crossly.

Celia had never seen the woman before. "I want to see Mrs. Rogers," she explained. "She must be asleep. I can't make her hear. I'm her daughter."

The woman opened the door a trifle wider. "She ain't there," she announced. "Ain't nobody there. You'll wake the whole house with that racket!"

"But my mother lives here!" The stranger shook her head negatively and emphatically. "Ain't nobody living there," she insisted, "not since I moved in. The place is vacant."

"You mean—my mother isn't here? You mean she's moved?" "I dunno nothing about it. All I know is that flat's vacant, and if you keep on pounding on the door nobody's going to get any sleep. Why don't you ask the woman that keeps the place? She's down on the first floor."

The door shut with a bang as the curl-papered head was withdrawn. In dismay and panic Celia stared at the wooden barrier and then fled down the stairs.

Mrs. Schultz, custodian of the apartment, lived in the first floor rear flat. Celia rang her bell sharply. Several moments passed, and then she heard a voice.

"Who's there?" The girl was trembling as she answered. "Mrs. Schultz? This is Celia—Celia Mitchell. Can I see you?"

"Just a minute, please!" When the door opened the stout Mrs. Schultz, enveloped in a purple cotton kimono and looking sleepy, squinted her eyes at the girl and then stepped back, amazed.

"Why—if it isn't Celia! What you doing here? Where you come from?"

"The girl smiled nervously. "Oh, I—just came to see my mother. I wanted to surprise her. Where is she, Mrs. Schultz? I knocked on the door upstairs, but a woman told me she'd gone away."

The custodian nodded. She was large and the action set the greater part of her rotund flesh into motion. She spoke with a slight German accent.

"Sure! She's gone. She don't tell you?"

"Why—I can't believe it!" Mrs. Schultz swept the door back. "Come in," she said. "Here, sit down. You're a little tired, ain't you?" Her voice was sympathetic. She picked up a garment and motioned to the girl to take the chair on which it had hung.

"Take it easy, Celia. You look kinda white."

CELIA continued to stand. She eyed the custodian with wide, frightened gaze.

"But I don't understand! How could she go away without telling me? When did she go?"

Mrs. Schultz considered. "Three, four weeks ago," she answered slowly. "Yes—about four weeks. Funny she don't tell you she's going, ain't it? She don't tell me neither."

Mist gathered before the girl's eyes. All at once she felt deserted and helpless.

"Tell me about it," the girl said tremulously.

Mrs. Schultz plumped into a chair that appeared too small for her. "Well," she began, "I tell you. With some delay and irrelevant interpolations she explained that Margaret Rogers had come to her on a Saturday afternoon nearly a month earlier and announced she was leaving the city. Her rent was paid for the next two weeks, which was the usual period of notice. Mrs. Schultz said that when she asked her tenant's plans Mrs. Rogers' answer was indefinite. She had said something about 'sending word later.'"

"But you haven't heard?" Celia asked quickly.

Mrs. Schultz replied in the negative. "Not one word! Not one word since she walked out of this house!"

"But the letters!" Celia cried.

"I've been getting letters from her—and they were mailed in Baltimore, too!"

"Yes!" As Mrs. Schultz uttered the syllable it was both a question and exclamation.

"Every Saturday!" Celia hurried on. "They must mean she's here, don't they? She couldn't send them if she weren't. Oh—what about the letters I wrote her?"

The custodian half turned, pointing to a littered desk across the room. "Look!" she commanded.

The girl looked. There were all sorts of papers and untidy odds and ends on the desk. Mrs. Schultz rose and moved toward it. She picked up a packet of letters bound by an elastic band and brought them to Celia. All of them were addressed to "Mrs. Margaret Rogers."

"My letters!" Celia exclaimed. "Sure. I keep everything until I hear what she wants. Everything!"

There were a few envelopes which looked as though they might contain circulars. Five others were addressed in Celia's hand writing. The girl studied them.

"Mrs. Schultz," she said appealingly, "where do you think she's going?"

A expressive shrug of a bulky shoulder was the answer. After a moment the woman said, "Where is that place she works? Maybe they tell you there."

"Margot's Shop! Of course! Why didn't I think about it?" Celia was on her feet. "Margot will know. I'll go there right away—"

Mrs. Schultz raised a hand in protest. "Not now!" she said. "It's barely seven o'clock. You can't go now!"

Celia had forgotten time. There was a clock on the wall. She compared it with her wrist watch. Both of them recorded that it was a few minutes past seven. Margot's Shop would not open until nine.

"That's right," she agreed. "I'll have to wait."

She sat down again, her face clouded.

Mrs. Schultz bustled toward the kitchen. "I get you something to eat," she announced. "I guess maybe you feel better."

Celia objected, declaring she was not hungry, but in the end she followed to the kitchen and presently both of them sat down to a meal of buttered toast, sausages, homemade preserves, doughnuts and coffee.

When they had finished and the dishes were washed it was still too early to set out for Margot's. At Mrs. Schultz' solicitation the girl lay down in the bedroom. She did not want to sleep, but her eyes closed.

It was nearly noon when Celia awoke. At first she was bewildered. Then events of the night rushed back to her and she arose immediately. She must get to Margot's!

She dashed cold water on her face, hastily brushed her hair, and with a word to the German woman she left the house. After what seemed an interminable delay a street car came in sight and she boarded it.

She left the car and walked swiftly up Charles street. Margot's Shop looked as usual. She opened the door and entered.

A SALESWOMAN she had never seen approached the girl. Celia asked for the proprietress.

"I'm so sorry. She's not here! Will someone else do?"

The girl explained her mission and the saleswoman disappeared to return with Miss Devereau, assistant manager. She recognized Celia, greeted her cordially, but admitted she had no knowledge of Mrs. Rogers' whereabouts.

"Margot would probably know," Miss Devereau said. "Isn't it a shame! She's in Canada, and I don't know when she'll be back. Her sister's very ill. Oh, I'm so sorry!"

"Then you don't know—" "Wait! Let's ask in the fitting room. Maybe someone there can tell you!"

In the fitting room a sewing machine buzzed loudly. Four women were bending over heaps of cloth which were garments. Celia recognized Tillie Dennison's broad shoulders and went up to her.

"Hello, Tillie!" "Mercy on us—if it isn't Celia!" The others stopped work and crowded around. It took only a few minutes for the girl's worst fears to be justified. Margaret Rogers' disappearance was a complete mystery to her former colleagues.

"I'll walk to the door with you," Tillie offered after they had talked a while, but as soon as they were outside the room she stopped and drew something from her apron pocket.

"Here, you might as well take these, I guess." Miss Dennison handed Celia a collection of letters. They were addressed to the girl. Celia uttered a low cry.

"She left 'em!" Tillie Dennison muttered. "Asked me to mail 'em to you. One each week. I've sent four. There's 12 left, isn't there?"

Her mother's letters! This explained how the others had reached her.

Suddenly grief and terror blinded the girl. She ran down the steps and out of the shop. A cab was passing. She hailed it and automatically gave the address of her former home. Arriving there she rang the bell of Mrs. Schultz's apartment. The door opened and the custodian's hearty voice greeted her. "Come in, Celia! There's a man, been looking for you!"

Devil's Island Is To Be Abandoned

French Might Abolish the Penal Colony For One Near Pole

PARIS, Nov. 6 (UP)—A movement has been started to move the French penal colony, located at Cayenne, French Guiana, to the farthest outpost in the world—the Kerguelen Islands, a dot between the South Pole and the tips of Australia and Africa.

Devil's Island, and its scenes of horror of fact and fiction, would be left behind for Desolation Island, the post of Gates of Hell, the Bay of Thunder and Terror reefs of the lost island.

Glaciers bob in the arctic seas just to the south of Kerguelen, which sits on the 50th rim of latitude. The heights of the island are covered with glaciers. The lowlands are healthy and rich, needing little labor to make it a rich farming place.

Deputy M. Archambault, is clamoring for the change from unhealthy Guiana to the healthy South Polar Seas.

The objection to Devil's Island is twofold. First, convicts escape too easily and with little money, and secondly, those who go in good health are soon physical wrecks. The unhealthy soon die.

Fourteen hundred liberated convicts obliged by law to spend as many years as free men in Guiana as they spent as convicts, are roaming the country. They are the only labor

Fish Save Pedestrian

LONDON (UP)—A basket of fish, George Griffiths was carrying on his back, saved him from serious injury when he was hit by a motor car.

The Salvation Islands, 27 miles off the Guiana mainland, of which Devil's Island is the best known, also includes the Island Royale, with tiers of cold, damp stone cells for incorrigibles and the Isle of St. Joseph with its prison hospital.

In all, France has 7,000 convicts in Guiana. Not all are prisoners. Nearly half are free men, unable to pay their return passage to France, as obliged by law, or "doubling" their penitentiary term by serving forced residence in the colony before going home.

Sweetheart of Bank Bandit Mourns His Death

LAMAR, Colo., Nov. 6.—(UP)—One of the few persons who mourned the death of Jake Fleagle, notorious bank bandit and train robber, was his sweetheart, Beatrice Holden.

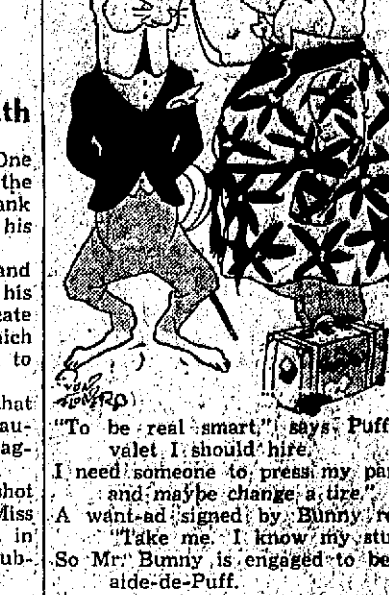

Miss Holden met Fleagle in Grand Junction, Colo. At the time of his death she was attempting to locate him and work out a plan by which she hoped he would be sentenced to life imprisonment.

Information received here is that Miss Holden talked with federal authorities this year about getting Fleagle to surrender at San Francisco. At the moment Fleagle was shot aboard a train at Branson, Mo., Miss Holden was attempting to get in touch with him. She wanted to submit her plan to him.

Paderewski Tours U.S. on Birthday

Famed Pianist's Fortune Gone After Aiding Poland

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(UP)—Ignaz Paderewski, prince of the piano and time ruler of 30,000,000 people, celebrated his 70th birthday anniversary today, trying to replenish a fortune dissipated through generosity. The great famous pianist of the 19th century arrived in the United States planning to give 70 concerts. For the first time in years he departed without his wife who is incurably ill in their chalet in Switzerland. Born in Podolia, Russia-Poland, November 6, 1860, Paderewski began playing the piano at three. When he was 12 he was sent to Warsaw to study, even though his first teachers held little hope that he would ever be a great pianist owing to his small hands. Even the great pianist admits his early education was difficult, adding that when he found he could not play the difficult passages he "merely improvised." From Roguski and later from Frederic Kiel in Berlin, Paderewski acquired a knowledge of harmony and counterpoint that have been a part of his success. At 18, he made a triumphant tour of Russia, Siberia and Rumania. Twelve years later, after giving up a life of drudgery while teaching in the Warsaw Conservatoire, he came to London and was coldly received. Saddened by the death of his first wife whom he had married when 20, Paderewski at 26 went to Vienna and Paris. After his London appearance he came to America which acclaimed him. Newspaper dispatches revealed that hundreds gathered at railway stations to see him as his train passed. Crowds walked miles to hear him in

To Head Women in Fight for Jobless

Feminine leader in the national administration's far-reaching campaign to reduce unemployment is Dr. Lillian M. Bidbreth, above, a consulting engineer, of Montclair, N. J. She has been appointed by Col. Arthur Wood, head of the government committee on unemployment, to be in charge of women's activities.

Texas. He is said to have earned $800,000 on one American tour. Much of this was spent in maintaining his company and in aiding impoverished, or struggling musicians. A great part of the fortune he had accumulated was poured into Poland after the war when he became Prime Minister and first President. During 1918-1919 Paderewski's name was on the tongue of hundreds of thousands of Polish peasants who loved him and believed him to be the one to carry on the work of the dead Kosciuszko.

For two years Paderewski would not allow a piano in his room. For an additional three years he did not play a note.

"I cannot play when the heart of my nation is so sad," he explained.

After Poland's recovery, the pianist emerged from his retirement. Most of his fortune was gone. He enjoys telling the story that while he was representing his country at the Versailles peace conference, the late Clemenceau approached him and said: "Are you the M. Paderewski who used to play the piano?"

When the pianist replied in the affirmative, the "Tiger" said sadly: "And now you're a premier. What a drop."

Paderewski was married a second time in 1929.

He was knighted by King George in 1925, but has never used the title. He appeared only once before the microphone, in 1925, declining to broadcast again because it made him too nervous.

Paderewski's patriotic spirit often has been commented on, but was acutely revealed once when he appeared before the Tsar in St. Petersburg and was praised by the ruler as a great pianist of which "Russia is proud to number you among her subjects."

The pianist quickly replied: "Pardon, sire, I am a Pole—not a Russian."

The next day he was escorted by police to the border.
